

Lowell Taylor

Lowell Taylor is the H. John Heinz III University of Professor of Economics at the Heinz College, Carnegie Mellon University, where he has been on the faculty since 1990. He is also a Senior Fellow at NORC at the University of Chicago, and he previously served as a Senior Economist on President Clinton's Council of Economic Advisors. He holds an MS in Statistics and PhD in Economics, both from the University of Michigan.

Taylor is a widely-published scholar who has made many contributions in labor economics, health economics, and demography. He is a four-time winner of the annual teaching award at the Heinz College.

He currently serves as the Chair of the CMU Faculty Senate.